Note: The obverse type is identical with an issue of Byzantium, see above #271. This points to a monetary alliance between these two cities for a certain period. (Head, Historia Numorum, pg.268, and Pozzi catalogue No. 1134). While specimens of Byzantium are scarce, those of Calchedon are excessively rare. Until recently, only 3 or 4 specimens were known to exist. A hoard, discovered in 1952, contained, among coins from other cities, five tetradrachms of Calchedon; cp. Margaret Thompson in ANS, Museum Notes VI, pg. 14, No. 37-41. (2 ANS; 3 Commerce). We are fortunate to offer here one specimen of the latter. The condition of the coin is very fine, and superior to the Jameson specimen #1378

This exceedingly rare coin (cp. note in BMC. pg. 96) comes from a hoard discovered shortly after the last war. This hoard contained 6 or 8 specimens, from which only 3 or 4 specimens found their way into private collections. Condition and style of this specimen is outstanding; the shadow has a distorting effect on the illustration.

- Note: The cataloguer published this medallion in "Numismatist" December 1947 discussing various explanations of the reverse design. (Reprint available). This piece was examined by two leading authorities, and we quote from the reply: "we are both of the opinion that the piece itself is genuine, but that it has been worked over, particularly on the reverse. The kink in the bimetallic line is odd and unusual, but I don't think that it tells against the piece . . . To the best of my knowledge there is only one other specimen of this medallion in Florence, apparently from the same dies, but much less well preserved—the Gneecchi II.95.7."

Additional information will be furnished upon request.

A list of prices realized will be sent free of charge to all successful bidders. Other parties may obtain a pricelist at the cost of $1.00 to be sent with the order.

If a bidder wants to limit his purchases to a certain amount he may indicate first and second choice. Such bids will be executed with care and as the situation warrants.
